

Food Donations

For many in Grey Bruce, it is a struggle to access affordable food. Food banks, community kitchens, community meals, and community gardens are some of the resources that are in our region to support food security. These year-round programs are often volunteer run and rely on contributions from the community to keep running. Volunteering your time or making a donation are great ways to reduce hunger in Grey Bruce. Contact your local food bank or other community resources to find out how best to support their efforts.

Here are some guidelines to follow:

- Contact your local Food Bank before making your donation. Staff and volunteers will be familiar with what foods are needed. Many food banks will accept cash donations to purchase the foods that are most needed.
- Check with your local food bank before donating perishable foods like fresh or frozen fruits, vegetables, milk or meats.
- Try the meal kit idea – all the dry ingredients for a meal, plus the recipe.
- Does your community have a Good Food Box program? Buying a box or a gift certificate for a box are great ways to donate fresh fruits and vegetables to a Food Bank.
- Follow Canada’s Food Guide to Healthy Eating and include foods from all four food groups. See back of page for healthy ideas.
- Non-perishable food items (canned foods, dry goods) are readily received.
- Foods free of common allergens such as nuts, dairy, egg, or gluten are great options for donations.
- Check expiry dates. Expired foods should never be donated.
